RATIONALE	Literacy is a foundational skill critical to student success in all academic areas. Despite efforts to improve literacy rates, many schools face challenges in regularly assessing and supporting students' reading progress, particularly in underserved areas. Reading assessments are essential tools that enable educators to identify student strengths, pinpoint areas for improvement, and provide targeted interventions. However, financial constraints often hinder schools from conducting these assessments consistently and effectively. This proposal aims to address this gap by providing schools with the necessary support funds to administer reading assessments and foster improved literacy outcomes. The Department of Education's (DepEd) National Learning Recovery Program (NLRP) emphasizes the need for appropriate and high-quality assessments to clearly identify the specific needs of the learners and provide them with effective intervention to improve learning outcomes. The goal of the assessment is to identify learners' specific skill deficits and provide data driven insights to guide intervention strategies and implementation. By achieving the goal, learning gaps shall be addressed and students shall achieve grade-level proficiency. Specific Objectives of the Downloading of Program Support Funds: <ol style="list-style-type: none">1.
